

THE COMBINATION HAS DISSOLVED

Alex. Brown & Sons Withdraw from Railway, Light and Ferry Consolidation.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
NORFOLK, VA., July 11.—The nine million dollar electric railway, light, gas and ferry combination here is dissolved. The combination embraced twelve lines of electric railways, with electric and gas lighting plants and the ferries of Norfolk, Portsmouth, Berkeley, Newport News, Hampton and Old Point. There were 120 miles of track, and all the light and power plants about Hampton Roads in the combination. The capitalists were Alexander Brown & Sons, Baltimore, represented by W. J. Payne, holding properties of the Newport News side, and J. L. Williams, of Richmond, and D. McDaniels, of Baltimore, holding the properties in and about this city. E. C. Hathaway, manager here, announces the withdrawal of the Brown interests, but says the dissolution is not due to a failure to float the bonds of the big concern, because the bonds have not been printed. The bonds, which withdraw, have not been doing as much traffic as they did before and the other roads have been doing more. The Sewell's Point Railway and ferry between this city and Newport News also withdraws.

AUGMENT GREATLY NUMBER OF CARS

no disorder ensued as a result of the gathering. Manchester produced the lone torpedo— the sole and solitary happening of the day. A car ran over it sometime during the night. The entire strike region could offer nothing more exciting than this, and this, it must be said, did not cause a riot. The inquest over the shooting of Taylor still continues; it will probably continue through Monday, and probably Tuesday. The soldiers have yet to be examined. The very greatest interest is taken in the matter.

The Company and the Men.
The strike itself has practically resolved itself into a question of endurance, and there is no likelihood of an early settlement, if there will ever be any settlement at all. Both sides are confident that they will stick it out and win, the company that it will carry to completion the attempt already more than partially successful, of reopening its lines without further reference to its former employees.

In the meantime, the usual increase of traffic on Sunday, a number of additional cars will be run to-day. No new lines will be opened, but more cars will be on the tracks than has been the case heretofore. So far as could be ascertained, there were no special developments in the action of the company during the day. Applications for positions are still coming in, and Superintendent Buchanan said last night that he was still increasing its regular force very materially each day. Up to 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon more than fifty men had been taken on. The applications are being called with some care, only those men who meet all requirements being chosen. Traffic on the cars, the company says, is large, and is constantly increasing. Many people visited the Reservoir yesterday, particularly at the time of the parade, but the thunder storm, with its heavy down-pour, spoiled everything.

One of the most notable victories of the company was that in the magistrate's court of Henrico yesterday, when the Angle-Gulgon matter was settled. The officer was fined for assault and the warrant charging Captain Gulgon with using abusive language was dismissed. On the other hand, Farley came out as the bad end again, being fined and put under bond for an alleged assault and a threat to kill a striker. An appeal was taken. In the Richmond Police Court Medinger and Puryear, motorman and conductor, charged with shooting into the crowd at Lombardy and Main, were discharged.

Among the Strikers.
Last night's meeting of the strikers was one of the most enthusiastic yet held. In the attack upon the company, there was no who discouraged by the prospect before them. Several speeches were made and there was frequent and hearty applause. The omnibus matter is now a momentous issue. Quite a number of new men have been gotten on the work of the proposed company is progressing nicely. Quite a number of the men have gotten good jobs elsewhere and one of them was heard to say last night that he would not leave it to go back to the company if the strike were declared off. Others have gone to their country homes until the matter is settled. The money from the National Union has not yet come and some of the men need it badly, but things are expected to be all right in the morning. The list has been forwarded to the national officers.

President Griggs was quite jubilant after the meeting last night. He thought it one of the finest gatherings yet held and on the strength of it reiterated his statement that the men were there to stick and also to fight if the company wished to do so. He stamps as untrue the persistent rumor that many of the men want to return to work. The company thus far has gotten but one striker back—Clayton. Brown (not Brauer) who went back yesterday had only been on the line a short while and was really not a member of the union. His application was under consideration.

So far as Organizer Orr is concerned, he says he is eminently satisfied with the condition of things. He believes that the men are doing remarkably well and that the statement attributed to him yesterday that they were not entirely accurate. He does not believe that either side is whipped yet. What he does believe is that there is not the shadow of a doubt that the men stick together as they are now.

NHE TAYLOR KILLING

Evidence to Show that the Soldiers Were Obeying Orders.

Another full day was consumed yesterday in the investigation into the shooting of Luther Taylor in Manchester. Fifteen witnesses were examined closely, and the result showed, even more clearly than upon the preceding day, that the soldiers who shot at the fleeing prisoner did so in the discharge of their duty. No evidence as to intoxication on the part of the soldiers was given, and while from a disinterested standpoint the shooting was indiscriminate, it was clearly shown that all those who fired the bullets pointed in the direction of the man in the buggy, who was urging his spirited horse on to what he vainly hoped would be liberty.

The evidence of no two witnesses tallied. In all the incidental excitement of the moment no two persons saw alike, and the story told by one man would contradict in detail that told by another. The line of questioning by jury, corner and counsel yesterday was intended to establish the fact as to whether or not the soldiers were reckless and careless in their shooting.

It was shown that firing came from all directions, aimed undoubtedly at the buggy, but at the same time endangering the lives of citizens who were sitting peacefully in their homes along Cowardin Avenue.

WAS PUSHED OUT.
In the evidence of the boy, Russell Cosby, he stated that he distinctly saw Taylor push the soldier who fired the bullet that he commanded him to halt. The important difference in his story from that of Mr. Macrone and Mr. Patram was that he declared that soldier to have fired the first shot.

Counselman Patram said when the soldier got out of the buggy he ran to the sidewalk, and Mr. Macrone said that the soldier who fired the first shot ran from the sidewalk into the street.

This may have been the same man, as the course of events ran so swiftly, that witnesses may not have followed the movement of the man in the buggy and after he got out.

Residents of Cowardin Avenue were very much worked up. Bullets went through several houses, and one or two narrow escapes were had. It was due to the narrowness of the street that the excitement grew so strong. Excitement ran rampant for a few minutes, and some of those who experienced the sensation of having bullets flying about them have not yet recovered.

Several civilian witnesses are yet to be examined before the hearing of the soldiers is gone into. They will be heard to-morrow morning, beginning at 9 o'clock. At 10 o'clock the hearing of the soldiers will begin, and will be continued until the case is completed, which will hardly be before Tuesday night.

VIEWED THE BUGGY.
At the conclusion of the sitting last night, the jury and the counsel for both sides, examined the buggy, which is a two-seated affair. It was slightly broken on the left side of the body, and one of the rounds on the seat was bent, just above the point at which the bullet entered Taylor's hip. It was splattered with mud, and spots of blood covered the floor near the dashboard.

The jury will visit the several homes on Cowardin Avenue that were struck by stray bullets, to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock.

I got some beer for him," he said. Harvey David said he fired the first shot, but knew nothing of the killing. He saw two soldiers shoot from Hull Street. The soldiers were not disorderly. He could not tell when the first shot was fired as the passing of a street car interfered. Russell Cosby, the boy, referred to by witness on Friday, then deposed. He said he saw the soldier with Taylor in the buggy, and he saw Taylor push the soldier out of the buggy. He landed partly on his feet, and when he got himself together, he fired "twit," and then fired. He also heard other soldiers command Taylor to halt, and he heard a man whom he thought was the captain say "Fire!" The soldier in the buggy called for the company to fire three times before he was thrown out of the buggy. He heard a soldier say the man was under arrest and was being carried to the station house.

WOULD SHOOT A SCAB.
J. B. Groves was holding at Gibbs' store, at Sixteenth and Hull Streets, when he heard the first shot. He ran to the door, and saw a sentry, whom he had been talking to a few minutes before go across the street with his gun raised. He then saw another sentry from Cowardin Avenue toward Bainbridge Street, and the sentry ran to the pavement near a telephone pole and fired in the direction of the shooting on Cowardin Avenue. He then ran further up the street, and fired then in the same direction, then he returned to his post of duty. He saw the street car stop at Cowardin Avenue and Hull Street, and saw two soldiers get off. Then he heard more firing. Witness was confident the sentry did not know what he was doing at, because he hadn't seen anything himself.

"This sentry told me in a conversation a short while before," said Mr. Groves, "that he was a working man, and he told me to shoot he would shoot a scab. He said he was a member of the Home Guard of Lynchburg."

Witness had not seen any drunken soldiers, but he had seen some who "hitched" their step a little. Linnie Starke saw the vehicle go into Cowardin Avenue and heard the soldiers call for "Captain!" The buggy was going slowly at the time. Then he heard the command to "Halt!" He saw the vehicle stop, and he saw the soldiers get out of the vehicle. He saw a sentry shoot at the vehicle.

TAYLOR A GOOD MAN.
G. H. Burrows did not know anything of the shooting, but told of going to the barns where Taylor had been given treatment and how he Taylor had given treatment by the company surgeon, and afterwards was carried to Seventh and Semmes Street. When he was placed in an ambulance and carried to the Virginia Hospital. He appeared at the hospital, and he always treated his Taylor, and his friends well.

Gibbs saw little of the shooting. He was standing at his door, when he saw a sentry across the street fire twice in the direction of Cowardin Avenue. Henry M. Owen was at his door on Cowardin Avenue when he heard the firing. The vehicle came up just as a soldier fired. The horse was going at a great speed. Taylor was leaning over the spatter-board as though trying to protect himself from the bullets. He heard no command to halt, and saw the shots fired. One bullet struck his door post and went into the parlor, where it was found on the floor the next morning.

SAW TROUBLE COMING.
James T. Morris, of No. 318 Cowardin Avenue, was talking to a sentry across from his house when he heard the shooting at Hull Street.

"That's trouble," said the sentry. "Witness could see the horse tearing down Cowardin Avenue. He didn't see 'That's a runaway horse,' he said. 'Don't shoot him.'"

A soldier shouted, "Stop that horse!" When it came up to where Mr. Morris stood, Taylor was leaning over the spatter-board. Several shots were fired. He then went to where the horse fell and helped to carry Taylor to the power-house, and of his treatment. A ball hit Taylor through his house, but he did not get injured any one. In reply to a question, witness said the horse was going at a terrific rate.

"I wouldn't like to have tried to stop that horse," he said. Clifford Davidson thought the soldiers were firing blank cartridges to frighten away some one.

He was on his way to a store on Hull Street, and walked down from Friend's drugstore midway of the block. As they reached the sentry on duty there at the corner, he heard a shot from Cowardin Avenue, in the rear of Schwartz's. The soldier with whom he had been walking fired in the direction of the first shot. Then he heard several other shots and went on to where he started. He saw a soldier come across the street and fire. He saw two get off the car. He saw another soldier farther down Hull Street, who asked him what was the trouble. He didn't know, but said he thought they were firing blank cartridges to frighten some one.

Later he saw a soldier on Cowardin Avenue, who told him the man had shot without orders, and that he had told them not to shoot.

M. J. Moore, a resident of Cowardin Avenue, was about to retire when he heard the shooting, and went to the door. He saw the horse running rapidly and thinks it was hit about opposite his house, as it reared up and ran across the street where it fell. He saw no hit on the buggy. A sentry not far away heard shouted "Shoot, fire!" He found two bullet holes in his wall. He heard five shots fired after the horse passed McDonough Street. He called out: "For goodness sake; stop shooting!" and a sentry cried: "Stop shooting, you'll hit everybody in the neighborhood."

C. R. Frith saw the buggy go into Cowardin Avenue, and then he went into Friend's drugstore. He saw no excitement or drinking and always moved when he was told to do so.

That closed the evidence for the day. There are several others to be called Monday morning, and then the soldiers will tell their side of the story.

SEVEN PINES ROAD
About $60,000 to Be Spent in Rehabilitation of the Seven Pines Line, in accordance with the instructions of Mr. Frank Jay Gould, owner of the system. When the chief engineer of the road, Mr. Calvin Whiteley, Jr., was asked about the matter yesterday, he said: "It is proposed to start the work as soon as the railroads are reopened. The work is expected in a few days. We have 25,000 cross-ties already here, as well as the copper for bonding and overhead wire. It will mean an expenditure in labor of from $500 to $8,000. The Seven Pines line is about eight and a half miles in length and many live in the section that it traverses."

SOLDIERS HURRY AT ALARM OF FIRE
An alarm of fire was sent in last night about 9 o'clock from the box at Twelfth and Broad Streets. An officer of the militia pulled the bell upon seeing smoke issuing from a second-story across the street. The fire was trifling but it was interesting to see how the soldiers responded in order in case of a fire. They gathered, as certainly would have been the case had the fire amounted to anything.

thing. An entire company rushed out from the armory and were among the first to arrive. Broad Street was more densely crowded last night than on any Saturday night since the strike began. Captain Hulce was particularly to have the street well policed to prevent disorder and to keep the moving. One of the instructions of the police is to keep people moving, and when little knots gather the officer who sees them politely requests them to disperse. With rare exceptions they do so without a murmur.

GARLAND—THURSTON

Bride, Grandmother's Stockings and Great-Grandmother's Jewels. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

LITTLE PLYMOUTH, VA., July 11.—Olivet Church was the scene of a beautiful marriage Wednesday, July 8th, 7:30 P. M. The contracting parties were Miss Elizabeth Southgate Thurston and Mr. Richard M. Garland. The bride is the beautiful, popular and accomplished daughter of Professor and Mrs. Wilton Thurston, of this place. The groom is a rising and prosperous business man of Chase City, Mecklenburg county, Va. The appointed time for the wedding march pealed forth under the skillful touch of Mrs. J. Y. Burton. The bride party entered the church as follows: Miss Maude Bland and Mr. Irving Carlisle; Miss Susan South and Mr. Oscar Grubbs; Miss Mattie Spencer and Mr. Floyd Revere; Miss Janie Cluverius and Mr. Bernard Carlton; Miss Mary Holladay and Mr. Tom Walden; Miss Lela Walden and Mr. Tom Garland. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her cousin, Miss Olivia Courtney, and preceded by Miss Maggie Courtney. The groom, with his brother, Mr. Edgerton Garland, and Mr. Garland, the bride's brother, preceded by Miss Lila Garland of Lynchburg.

Witness had not seen any drunken soldiers, but he had seen some who "hitched" their step a little. Linnie Starke saw the vehicle go into Cowardin Avenue and heard the soldiers call for "Captain!" The buggy was going slowly at the time. Then he heard the command to "Halt!" He saw the vehicle stop, and he saw the soldiers get out of the vehicle. He saw a sentry shoot at the vehicle.

The bride was gowned in a handsome white silk and wore jewels of her great-grandmother, also her grandmother's silk stockings which she wore on her wedding day, sixty-seven years ago. The bride's church was beautifully decorated with marguerites and ferns. The parents of the bride gave a reception, which surpasses description.

Those from a distance were Misses Lillian Ragland, Margaret Courtney, Lillian Ragland, Misses Mary and Hontas Holladay, of Glen Allen; Messrs. Tom and Edgerton Garland, of Chase City, brothers of the groom.

When the bride's cake was passed around Miss H. H. Courtney cut the ring. R. A. Ragland, the money, Miss Walden the thimble, but the button disappeared mysteriously. It is thought a young man swallowed it to prevent the parties knowing he was to be an old bachelor. The bride's presents were many and after having a most pleasant time.

A NEW ORGAN

Shenandoah Democrats to Nominate Candidates by Primary. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WOODSTOCK, VA., July 11.—The members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Strasburg, Shenandoah county, have just placed a handsome organ in their edifice at a cost of about $1,500.

The Democratic County Committee, of Shenandoah county, has decided to hold primaries Saturday, August 15th, from 12 M. until sunset, for the purpose of nominating county officers, members of the House of Delegates and electors to the State Senate from the Tenth District, there being two candidates, Hon. S. L. Lupton, of Frederick county, the present incumbent, and Judge Frank S. Tavenner, of Shenandoah county.

New wheat is being delivered to the millers at this place. The quality of the grain is good, and the yield fully comes up to the estimate—it being an average crop.

The first serious break in the Woodstock water system occurred yesterday, when the tamping to the main line was forced on about a mile east of town, causing the supply of water off for the day.

TO INSTALL PASTOR

A Turkey Gobbler that Hatches Out and Tends Chickens. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

WINCHESTER, VA., July 11.—Rev. J. A. McClure will be installed to-morrow as pastor of the Protestant churches at Front and Main streets.

Mr. Hunter B. Grimm, a leading contractor and stone mason left to-day for Morgantown, W. Va., where he will superintend the erection of a $20,000 Methodist Church.

Rev. W. J. Coyle, a well known Christian minister of Shenandoah county, has accepted a call to Georgia, where he will become State evangelist.

A. J. Rogers, of Shenandoah county, has a turkey gobbler that is a most business-like bird. Recently he displayed such an eagerness to "get" upon a hatching of eggs that Mr. Rogers gave him a separate nest.

The gobbler hatched out a number of chickens and is now watching over them as carefully as a mother hen.

DOG TOWN ECHOES
Lawn Party and a Concert by Richmond Talent. (Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

IRWIN, VA., July 11.—A concert and lawn party given by the Ladies' Aid Society of Byrd Church, at Dog Town last night was very successful. About $25 was cleared, which will swell the general fund of the church.

The Odd-Fellows' quartette, of Richmond, consisting of Messrs. Phelps, Gentry, Fones and Davis, rendered an excellent musical programme, and Mr. Cherry repeated the excellent imitations and mimicry that made a name for him in Goodland last Christmas.

Refreshments were served, as was a most comfortable supper. Owing to the heat in which the affair was arranged, the attendance was very good, but was not nearly so large as was expected.

Miss Annie S. Heilmann, of Petersburg, returned home after a three weeks' visit to Dog Town.

Mr. L. V. Phillips, of Richmond, is visiting at Dog Town.

Miss Fredericka Leake, daughter of Judge A. K. Leake, of Richmond, is visiting the daughters of Mr. H. C. Preston.

Miss Helen Wheeler, of Elmlington, Nelson county, is visiting Miss L. W. Irwin.

Northern Tours.
Mrs. William E. Turner and Miss Magie Morgan leave the city this evening to spend the summer among the Adirondacks White Mountains and Canada.

Mrs. A. D. Atkinson, accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Daisy Morgan, will to-morrow visit Old Dominion Line for an extended Northern tour.

BOLD CRIME OF DRUNKEN MAN
Yadkin River Boat Club Organized—Old Lady Found Dead in Bed.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
SALISBURY, N. C., July 11.—A report has reached this place of a criminal assault, which occurred in Barringer township, Iredell county. It is reported that under the influence of liquor Lester Arthur and Ed. Mills, both young white men, went to the home of Mrs. Clifton Lipe, residing near Shady Grove Church, and finding Mrs. Lipe alone, Mills stood at the door and watched while Arthur's went into the house and assaulted her. Mrs. Lipe was severely choked, and her clothes were badly torn.

During the assault her cries were heard by her husband, who was near the house, and who came to her rescue. However, upon reaching the door Mills confronted him with a pistol and threatened to shoot. Another accident occurred, and the husband was by this juncture, and both Arthur and Mills made good their escape. Warrants have been issued, and the officers are searching for the two men, but to no avail thus far. Arthur formerly lived in Pittsburg, Pa., and it is learned that he ran away from a clothing business at a similar offence.

Educational matters are waxing warm in this part of North Carolina, as evinced by the action of the county commission on various resolutions. The Board of Commissioners of Iredell county met this week, looking to an increase of the educational facilities of the county. Liberal appropriations were made to a number of school districts for rural school libraries.

L. Banks, of Salisbury, who made an assignment a few weeks ago, has adjusted his differences with creditors, and has reopened his clothing business. The Yadkin River Boat Club has been organized, with a good-sized membership. The club launched its first excursion boat this week at its quarters on the river near Spencer. The boat is of the motor type, and will accommodate about twenty passengers at one time.

Dr. J. N. Stallings, of this city, has received information that his son, Prof. Robert Stallings, will arrive here to-morrow. Prof. Stallings has been teaching in the Philippines for the past two years. Mrs. Margaret Kimball, aged 83 years, was found dead in bed at her home in the eastern suburbs of this city early yesterday morning. While the aged lady had been in ill health for some weeks, no immediate cause of her death has been assigned.

CECELIA YACHT CLUB
Spent a Pleasant Time at Beach Park Last Night.

The Cecelia Yacht Club went to Beach Park on the evening train yesterday and had a fine time at that popular resort. The club is arranging for an outing on its own yacht down the James. This trip will be taken as soon as the season opens. Several of the street car strikers belong to the club and there are a number of charming young ladies on the rolls.
